

REMARKSSerial No. 10/020,830

Favorable consideration of the present application, as amended, is respectfully solicited.

Relative to the Examiner's Amendment, the word "about" has been inserted in line 5 of claim 1 and line 6 of claim 7 to be consistent with the original wording of claims 6 and 12, respectively, which were incorporated into claims 1 and 7, respectively. Also, the form of certain of the percentage recitations were changed to be consistent with the form of the original recitations in claims 6 and 12.

This is in response to the Examiner's reasons for allowance. While the Cohen '743 patent might be the "most pertinent prior art," it is submitted that it does not anticipate or render obvious claims 1, 7 and 15-19 as submitted with the amendment of August 22, 2003 for reasons set forth in the remarks of said amendment.

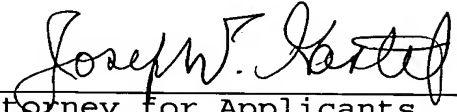

The claims, with the amendments proposed by the Examiner, were accepted in order to terminate prosecution and obtain issuance of the patent because it was believed that the ranges set forth in the claims would cover all meaningful compositions and products. However, considering that applicants believe that the broader claims, as presented in the amendment of August 22, 2003, define patentably over the Cohen patent, a continuation application is being filed with these claims.

Entry of the present amendment is respectfully requested.

Respectfully submitted,

LOUIS PATRONE ET AL
